Ingredients

CoQ10 is an essential component of the mitochondria (the “powerhouse” of a cell), where it plays a major role in energy production. CoQ10 is found in almost every cell in the body. Our bodies naturally make Co-Q10 in smaller quantities; however, as we age our ability to make Co-Q10 declines and our Co-Q10 levels can become depleted. Certain conditions and medications have also been found to deplete Co-Q10 levels in our bodies.

Supplemental Co-Q10 has been used in several different studies spanning a wide range of topics. It has been used successfully in many cardiovascular related health issues. It has also been found to restore Co-Q10 levels after medication use. Co-Q10 is also a strong antioxidant and is often times used for this reason.

Quality can be an issue when choosing a Co-Q10 supplement. CoQ10 is used in this product as an oil form. This oil has an absorption rate three times higher than dry powder forms used by other competitors. Vitamin E is an oil that is added to help protect the product from oxidation.
